Mike – Rather than disturb your cubicle, I will leave the hard drive in its box in my office next to my computer. The door will be closed but unlocked.

There are two folders on the hard drive. They are titled “backups” and “Washington Mining Company”. The Washington Mining Company folder contains all the documents sent in response to the 104(e).

The backups folder contains all the Kinross documents, the Mueller documents in a zip file, and the Washington Mining Company (WMC) documents again. The WMC subfolder within the backups folder contains all the original documents from WMC and also include the WMC documents divided into folders as they were sent to the EPA Record Center for filing. There is duplication in this second group of WMC documents in that if one of the WMC Attachments was much greater than 50 mg, the Record Center asked me to divide them into folders of about 50 mgs. So when you see a folder named WMC Attachment 2-A-1 and so forth, that is a folder I created out of documents from the 2-A folder, however, on this disk, I retained the 2-A folder, so there is duplication. I did the same for the other folders that were substantially larger than 50 mg where I retained the original folder, i.e., WMC Attachment 4, and then include the folders I created for the Record Center from Attachment 4, i.e., WMC Attachment 4-A-1 to 4-A-20.

I removed all my backups from my old computer from this hard drive.

Let me know, if there are any questions.

Thanks

Looking at documents as I write, please put the hard drive in my locked file cabinet. Charles and I promise that you will get it back soon.
